

Francisco Pascual Vives is Professor of International Law and International Relations at the University of Alcalá (Spain). He coordinated a Jean Monnet Module between 2013 and 2016. He served as Law clerk at the International Court of Justice from 2009 to 2010. He holds an LL.M. from the University of Alcalá and a Ph.D. on International Law from the University of Alicante. He has authored several publications on the following topics: concept and foundations of public international law, creation of international rules, international human rights law, international investment law and European Union law. As for international investment law, he has focused on the Spanish and Latin American treaty and arbitral practice as well as on the development of the European Union competence concerning foreign direct investments.